Our stage play was shown on 15 June 2018 in the library of OSZ Handel 1.

Below I describe the development and the experiences of the stage play.

In cooperation with the theater teacher Kalle Mille and the artist Birte Trabert, we have developed the stage play in 10 weeks with the topic of tourism. At first we gained insights into the theater world by learning different acting techniques. For this we worked on gestures and facial expressions. Then we worked out different scenes that resulted in the finished play. Because we planned the play in the context of the English lessons under the direction of Mrs. Rausch, we played scenes in German and in English. We use the topics of drugs and tourism. These are the scenes in the park, at the airport and in the supermarket.

The play begins with the fact that we step on the railing and everyone calls loudly a term that reminds him of tourism. Symbolic of the ever louder cries of words, a classmate (Henry M.) inflates a balloon and makes it burst. Everything stops and it goes into silence and in the first scene. The scenes are loosened up with a rap from my classmate Yannic, who should support the drug scene in Görlitzerpark. In addition to the individual scenes, there were always different actions that acted alongside the actions. This includes "My last destination was ..." and "My last destination will be ..." where we should name our last destination and our next destination.

Combining holidays, drugs and tourism in a city like Berlin was exciting. The Görlitzer Park is just around the corner and many people in Berlin goes not so often on holiday. Even dealing with tourists is something that you will be confronted with every time. We will certainly be able to apply the experiences we gained in the weeks at some point during everyday conversations. It was a lot of fun.
